

The step by step framework
for building your impressive premium brand.

Why is branding important?

You have probably heard this a gazillion times:

Your brand is more than your logo, name, or slogan.

Your brand is the entire experience your prospects and customers have with your person, company, product, or service.

What is a brand?

People's impression of something

What is branding?

The deliberate act of shaping people's impression.

Why must every brand create a brand strategy?

This is where strategy comes in and why it is very important.

“A vision without a strategy remains an illusion.”

Lee Bolman

A branding strategy is a long-term plan for the development of a successful brand.

Branding that is strategically executed consistently, helps you communicate clearly which makes it easily recognizable in a sea of competitors and more memorable.

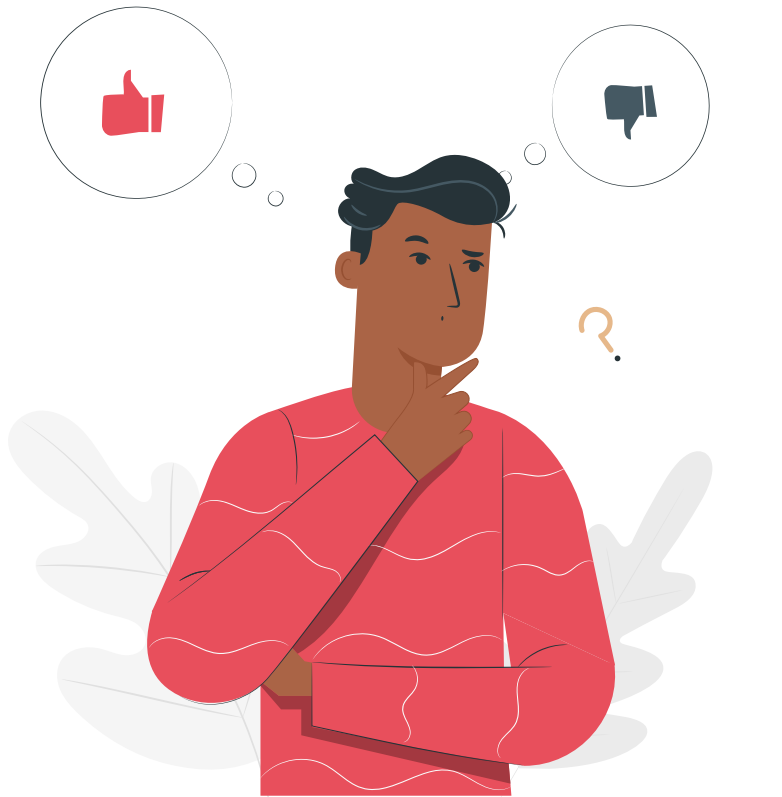

This not only ensures your brand attracts your desired audience and compels them to take your desired action (e.g buy a product or apply for a job), it also breeds loyal ambassadors in the form of loyal customers and devoted employees.

When do I need branding?

The best time to plant
a tree was 20 years ago. The second best time is now.

If you are starting a new brand, this is the perfect time to execute branding. A strong foundation gives you the best possible chance of succeeding.

If your brand already exists, here are 5 times when you should consider rebranding:

1. Your business model or offering is changing

If you are offering products not in line with what your customers are used to or you are changing your approach to delivering your offerings, you need to rebrand as a statement announcement so your audience does not become confused.

2. Your communication assets look inferior

If your company profile or product packaging looks mediocre when placed beside that of your competitors, you need to rebrand so you stop losing prospects.

3. You've dealt with negative perceptions

If you have consistently failed to deliver on your brand promise and it has dented your reputation in the market place, you need to first ensure you find a way to deliver on your promise first and then rebrand to make it clear to the audience that you have changed your bad ways.

4. You need to raise your prices

When you have considerably improved the value of your product/service but you are having difficulties getting the same value in return, rebranding will help you increase your price considerably.

5. You're not attracting premium audiences

If you are having difficulties attracting top talent or high-paying clients, a holistic rebranding that creates a perception of class across all touchpoints especially your physical environment will help you resolve this.

How do I begin with branding?

The process of executing your branding starts with strategically providing simple answers to 4 primary questions. These answers will serve as a guide for daily decision making and achieving all specific brand goals.

The 4 primary questions are:

Why, Who, What & How

Why

Why does your organization exist and why are you driven to provide a solution?

(Brand Purpose & Promise)

Who

Who are you?

(Brand Personality)

Whose problem are you solving?

(Target Audience)

Who is challenging you?

(Competitors & Differentiation)

What

What are you providing?

(Product/Service and USPs)

How

How do we process interaction?

(Sales process)

How do we keep people engaged?

(Loyalty program)

The answers to these questions provide a long-term guide to all your brand actions and communications including but not limited to new product/service additions, choice of words, design direction, choice, and placement of print and digital marketing assets.

What steps do I take next?

You have successfully provided short answers to the 4 questions above, now what next?

Follow 2 steps to successfully build an impressive brand that attracts and compels your desired clientele, staff, and partners.

Step 1

Using a branding framework, organize a workshop with stakeholders, and create a detailed strategy and communication plan from the answers provided to the 4 questions.

We have provided our branding framework at Yox Novero below. Print it out, ask questions, carry out research using the guide on the right hand of the framework and fill in the blanks.

Redesign, reproduce, and store it as the guideline for all your brand actions.
